

“Sol Duc” is a Native American word for “sparkling water”. The springs, known to local Native American tribes for their therapeutic value, first came to the attention of settlers in the 1880s. An elegant resort opened on this land in 1912, characterized as “the most noted pleasure and health resort on the Pacific Coast” until a catastrophic fire destroyed it in 1916.

The resort was rebuilt on a more modest scale in the 1920s and operated into the 1970s. Restorations in the 1980s are reflected in the resort which exists today. As a favorite Olympic National Park destination, Sol Duc offers guests a relaxing soak in hot mineral spring pools, hiking through dense, ancient forest and a peaceful night’s sleep to the sounds of the Sol Duc River flowing past their cozy cabin, RV site or tent camp site.
